Mr Taylor, a native of Ohio, has resided in New York since 1973 when he began working for Barclays Bank International. His interest in the role gold has played in U.S. monetary history led him to research gold and into analyzing and investing in junior gold shares.

In 1981, he began publishing North American Gold Mining Stocks, which preceded his current newsletter. His continuing interest in gold mining prompted him to study geology at Hunter College in New York City, supplementing his MBA in Finance from Baruch College, NYC.

Throughout his career Mr Taylor worked as a commercial, then as an investment banker. Most recently, he worked in the mining and metals group of ING Barings in New York. Prior to that, he was involved in the first gold loan made in modern times in the U.S. This loan, a 250,000 ounce facility was to AMAX Minerals and led by Citicorp.

In 1997 he resigned from ING Barings to devote himself full time to researching mining & technology stocks, writing his newsletter and assisting companies in raising venture capital. In addition to publishing his newsletter, he currently hosts the web-based radio show “Turning Hard Times Into Good Times” scheduled weekly on Voice America Business.

“As regular subscribers to my newsletter know, I have become ever more involved in radio and television media these days. I am especially excited to become part of what I believe is the application of cutting edge technology for companies wishing to tell their stories to the investing public, namely through www.InvestmentPitch.com.”

According to Google, a video is 50 times more likely to get the attention of Internet users than a text-based press release. InvestmentPitch.com uses the latest technology to provide what it calls a video press release, and combines it with one of the best distribution packages in the industry. This is what I think makes the company so exciting”, stated Jay Taylor.
